Text:My school days!

I think that my primary school days were the most cheerful and careless days in my whole life.

Then, I went to school with a big desire, though my first days were hard. I was the smallest pupil in my class and I had short ginger hair. My classmates made fun of me all the time calling me “small carrot”. But being funny and helpful made them love me later. One day, our teacher asked us to draw a picture for our family, I drew four carrots. When the teacher asked, I said: “This is my family, we are all redhead.” All pupils were laughing, but I ended up by standing at the back of the class for being naughty.

All the children at school became good friends. We were playing and learning together every day. We started to write and read. We were active and wanted to know everything in the world. In breaks, we were playing with toys; boys with cars and girls with dolls. In the corridor, we had to walk in a line by pairs whereas we always wanted to run and teachers stopped us.

Primary school gave us a base knowledge and cognition. It formed our mentality and psychology. Now, we can thank primary school for our joyful childhood.
