On the 15th of April 1912, the world awakened to hear about one of the deadliest peacetime maritime disasters in history. The great British ship"theTitanic", which believed to be an unsinkable ship, sunk in the Atlantic Ocean four days after it sailed from Southampton to New York City in a maiden voyage. The news reported that the disaster happened at 10.25 pm when the ship was in its way and collided with an iceberg that destroyed half of its compartments.

In the early morning of 14 April, the ship received an alarm from other ships that there is an iceberg in its direction and that the ship should be careful and change its way in order to avoid any collision soon. However, the ship stayed in its way with a few precautions that may prevent the sinking. At 11.20 pm, the ship sent a message via wireless telegram to announce its trouble and called for immediate assistance through media. Unfortunately, it was too late for any help providers to save the titanic because the electricity went out in the ship and made it difficult to communicate with other ships. Meanwhile, half of the ship was destroyed because of the water, which flooded its room

The awful disaster resulted in the death of 1500 passenger and only 675 others have been saved thanks to the lifeboats that were in its compartments. Only other ships who came to search for survivors could save a few of thousands who were striving in the frozen sea to stay alive.
